Introduction

South Lanarkshire is the fifth largest local authority in Scotland with over 310,000 people living in the area. It is one of Scotland’s most varied areas, combining the advantages of a modern thriving economy with beautiful rural landscapes. Situated in the central lowlands of Scotland, South Lanarkshire is in a convenient position for road and rail links to the rest of the UK. The area has excellent facilities, including shopping centres, cinemas and restaurants. There are also many leisure facilities, including libraries, museums, swimming pools and fitness centres.

There are more than 53,000 people over 65 living in South Lanarkshire and the elderly population is expected to continue to rise in the future. At South Lanarkshire Council we are committed to working with a range of partners and other agencies to provide a wide variety of services to help support older people to continue to live in their own home. These include help with daily tasks such as shopping and preparing meals and providing equipment and adaptations to their property (such as a stairlift or walk-in shower). You will find more details of support services for older people in section 5 of this brochure.

Along with other social landlords, we provide a range of specialist housing for older people across South Lanarkshire. This brochure explains what sheltered housing is and what very sheltered housing is, and describes the range of facilities and services available to elderly people living in this type of accommodation. It also gives details of developments in the South Lanarkshire area and information on how to apply for sheltered housing.
1 Using the brochure

This brochure gives you details of the sheltered housing that is available across South Lanarkshire and the services it provides.

Sections 2 and 3 of the brochure tell you which landlords provide housing in which areas of South Lanarkshire.

You can look through section 7 for details of the types of accommodation offered by each landlord.

You may want more information from each landlord. For example, you may want to know how long you will have to wait for a property on a particular development, whether you can go and look at the accommodation, what facilities are available and how you can apply.

If you are interested in a particular development, please contact the landlord of that development using the contact information provided in section 8 of the brochure.

4 What is sheltered housing?

Sheltered housing provides individual, self-contained homes for older people. By self-contained, we mean having its own kitchen and bathroom, and usually its own private entrance. The properties are generally grouped together and may be bungalows, ground-floor or first-floor flats, or flats within a building that has a lift. Each resident is a secure tenant with all the rights and responsibilities of a tenancy.

Sheltered housing creates a community which helps to promote companionship and a feeling of security and aims to encourage residents to live in their own home for as long as possible.

- Each property has an emergency call system, which gives residents peace of mind knowing that they can get help if they need it.
- Many sheltered developments offer the added service of a sheltered housing officer or manager, who has regular contact with residents.
- Sheltered housing often offers social activities for people who want to take part. Some developments have a shared lounge which gives residents the opportunity to relax in the company of their neighbours and provides a venue for more organised social activities.

Some sheltered housing developments are designed to support people who are more frail and dependent on social care services. These are called ‘extra-care housing’ or ‘very sheltered housing’ and provide extra facilities not normally provided in sheltered housing, such as:

- a midday meal;
- support with personal care, for example bathing; and
- help with practical and domestic tasks.

Social Work staff are normally involved in assessing the suitability of people for ‘extra-care’ housing or ‘very sheltered’ housing.
What type of support is provided in sheltered housing?

Residents can use the emergency call system in each property to speak to on-site support staff or a trained operator within an emergency response centre if they need help or support (for example if they have had a fall).

Many sheltered developments also have sheltered housing staff based on site or who visit the development on certain days of the week. Their duties will depend on the type of development and the needs of residents, but will normally include:

- making regular contact with residents and offering support and advice to help them to live as independently as possible;
- responding to emergencies, and contacting relatives and emergency services when necessary;
- providing information on other services who may be able to help, for example social work, health, welfare and benefits services;
- encouraging residents to get involved in social activities; and
- looking after the maintenance, safety and security of the buildings and shared areas (for example lifts, stairways and garden areas).

Sheltered housing staff are not employed to help tenants with personal care such as bathing, dressing, shopping, making meals or giving out medicine. However, they can help residents to contact other agencies who provide this kind of support.
How can I find out more about what different sheltered housing developments offer?

Section 7 of this brochure provides information on each of the sheltered housing developments in South Lanarkshire. The symbols in section 6 show what facilities each development can offer.

Who can apply for sheltered housing?

Usually, anyone over the age of 60 can apply for sheltered housing. However, some organisations will accept applications from people under 60 if this type of accommodation and support is appropriate for their needs. You do not have to live in South Lanarkshire to apply for sheltered housing in this area.

How do I apply?

If you are interested in living in a particular development, please contact the appropriate office listed in section 8 of this brochure. The way in which you apply will vary for each landlord listed. So, although all the organisations in the brochure will make it as simple as possible, you need to contact the landlord of the development you are interested in for more information.

Not all sheltered properties are suitable for people who have disabilities. If you have a disability you will have to mention this when you apply for housing so that you are offered a property appropriate to your needs.

In many areas, more people want to live in sheltered housing than there are properties available, and applications have to be put in order of priority, depending on the needs of the people applying. The length of time you are likely to wait to be offered a home will depend on the particular development that you are interested in and how many people are also waiting for accommodation there.

The council website www.southlanarkshire.gov.uk also has up-to-date information about the type and size of council and housing association properties, which may help you choose the best property for your needs.
Is there a charge for sheltered housing?

- Yes, you will have to pay rent every week, every two weeks or every month. In some developments, this will include a service charge for services such as cleaning shared areas. You may be entitled to Housing Benefit which will pay some or all of your rent.

- You may also have to pay for the support services provided by sheltered housing staff, but you may be eligible for some help with this depending on your income.

You can get details of the rent and any other charges for sheltered housing from the landlord of each development.

What should I look for in a sheltered housing scheme?

When applying for sheltered housing, you may want to consider which of the following are important to you.

- How near is the development to shops, transport and doctors' surgeries?

- Would I be near to family, friends and other support services?

- Does the size and layout of the properties meet my needs?

- Can the development meet my needs (for example, if you use a wheelchair, have problems with your eyesight and so on)?

- Are the staff welcoming and informative?

- What do other residents say about living there?

- Can I keep a pet?

- What will it cost me to live there, including rent, service and support charges?

- Would I be happy living there?
Private retirement housing

There are also a number of private-sector developments which provide retirement housing for older people who want to own their own homes. Developments are generally made up of blocks of flats and sometimes bungalows. The services provided in retirement housing can vary from development to development, and you should check carefully what is available. There is almost always an alarm system that you can use to get help in an emergency, and many developments have a warden or manager living on site. You can get information and advice on private retirement housing from Age Scotland, including developments in South Lanarkshire. Please call them on 0845 125 9732 or e-mail shopenquiries@agescotland.org.uk and ask for more details.

Amenity housing

You may also want to consider applying for other types of properties, such as amenity housing. This is housing that has been specifically designed or adapted for people with particular needs (such as older people or those with a disability). Amenity housing is self contained accommodation which has the following features:-

- Raised electrical sockets
- Lowered light switches
- Handrails in the bathroom
- Non-slip flooring in bathroom

Amenity properties do not have a sheltered housing officer but tenants can have a community alarm if necessary, which is connected to the council’s 24-hour emergency response centre.

To find out where amenity properties are located in South Lanarkshire please contact your local Q and A office on page 41 of this guide.

Abbeyfield Society

The Abbeyfield Society has three homes with support in South Lanarkshire. Each resident has their own bedroom and bathroom, and access to a shared lounge and dining room, where main meals are provided. Support is provided by a house keeper. Details of each Abbeyfield Home can be found in the relevant section of this brochure.
5 Support to help you stay at home

Services such as adaptations to your property or help with household tasks may help you to continue to live in your own home. Our social work and housing departments work together to provide a range of services to support people to live at home. These include the following.

- Equipment or adaptations such as a stairlift or shower.

- A community alarm, which is connected through your normal phone and set off by pressing a pendant that you can wear around your neck or clip to your clothing. The alarm is connected to a 24-hour control centre, where a trained operator will speak to you and get more help if this is needed (for example, call a relative or an ambulance for you).

- Help with daily tasks such as washing, dressing, preparing meals and shopping.

If you feel that you would benefit from any of the services above, Social Work Resources will need to carry out a care assessment for you first. Depending on your income, you may have to pay a charge for these services. For more information or to arrange an assessment, please contact your local Social Work office (details are listed opposite).

The following services also support older people to live at home.

- The Care of Gardens Scheme
  This provides a free garden maintenance service for council tenants aged over 70, or tenants under 70 who meet the qualifying conditions for the scheme due to a disability or health problem. Please call 0141 584 2705 or email careofgardens@southlanarkshire.gov.uk for more information.

- The Care and Repair Project
  This is an independent charity that provides free advice and practical help on home improvements, repairs and adaptations for elderly or disabled homeowners and private tenants. The service also helps many elderly owner-occupiers carry out small repairs to their homes that they may not otherwise be able to do. The small-repairs service is free – you only have to pay for any materials needed. You can contact Care and Repair by phoning 01555 666200 or by emailing enquiries@careandrepair-sl.co.uk

- HomelImprove Service
  This service provides a wide range of information and advice to homeowners and private tenants to help them maintain, improve or adapt their home. This includes providing grants towards disabled adaptations and financial help with some types of work. (This can be a loan or a grant, depending on the kind of work that needs to be done and your financial circumstances). You can contact the HomelImprove Service on 08457 406080 or email informationandadvice@southlanarkshire.gov.uk for more details.
